

The Creative Process

Waith: “The creative process, in whatever form it takes, is Interdimensional Communication.”

Mushiba: Creativity comes from a higher source of Self ~ we are inherently creative. Waith highlights this concept, for creativity can be as simple as deciding what to eat, what to wear, singing in the shower, to name a few creative behaviors.

Periodically, I like to rearrange the furniture in my living space, including all the crystals and rocks that share this space ~ I am of Service to Self, although at a higher level, I am serving all the energies that live with me. Thus, Self’s creativity can also Be of Service to Others. I have used my ability to organize to help others learn how to do the same for their space.

From where did my ability to organize come? Truly, from another dimension of Self because I know, instinctively, how to do it ~ it is inherent.
